Village houses to go-ahead

COUNCILLORS gave the go-ahead for seven houses to be built in Luddenden village despite opposition from Luddenden Conservation Society.

The three-storey houses will be built off High Street. Objectors feared the houses would result in the loss of more trees, more traffic, car parking problems and would be out of character with the centre of the village.

Members of Calderdale Council Development Control Sub-committee said the developers could not build unless they planted six trees in place of those that would be lost.
